“ Hey grandpa I miss you. And I know you miss me too! There hasn't been a day that passed that you haven't been on my mind. You taught me a lot. Taught me how to be a man. Taught me right from wrong. Wish you could be here right now. I just wish I could see you again ❤️. One last time... But I know you're in a better place right now. I just wanted to reach out to you. I love you

“ May God bestow upon the Scott family a spirit of comfort and peace. May His spirit especially embrace Mr. Scott's children.

I met Mr. Scott this past summer and remember him to be a friendly, down-to-earth person who seemed to enjoy life. He had a sense of style; I remember complimenting him on his purple suit.

I was very disturbed to hear of his sudden departure. I know he is now at peace. ~~###imported-begin##Sabrina Newton###imported-end##

“ To the Scott family and friends:

It's not the same looking out the window or driving in the driveway coming home from a long day at work hoping to see Troy with a smile on his face. Mowing his grass, cooking out, picking things out of his garden, and all the great things Troy was about. Always making sure he said hello even when he was busy. Troy would do anything for his neighbors and we would do anything for him. It was so special when my son graduated last year from high school we had a Hawian lulu party and Troy came with his flowered shirt and even went as far as having the best firework display ever. We built our houses together and Troy looked over us and the project. I loved seeing his grandchildren come over. Troy loved them and they are very kind like their grandfather. He was always so kind to our children and they called him Uncle Troy and my mother MOMS. It was nice because when life got tough Troy would call me over and would say "What's going on?" There's a cloud over your house. It was pretty weird that he would recognize the small things in life and I believe that was from him being such a great caring man. This neighborhood will not be the same but Troy will always be in our hearts and we miss him dearly. God bless you all and I thank God for giving us a special person in our life and the best neighbor a family could have. We miss you neighbor.

Love us all,
